Cameron, Milam County, Texas Monday June 19, 1972

Now

With F.M.I.

In an upstairs hallway at the house, there is a painting of NOW, crew-cut and goatee, done from a picture taken during Cameron's first Western Week.

The goatee is quite flimsy, much less than a moustache which is now some fashion and jutting between my nose and upper lip.

On the back of the painting, done by a relative, is a notation: "Angry young man, Texas style. 1959."

Tommy Turner, then Central Texas bureau chief for the Dallas News, took one look at that flimsy goatee and crewcut that week and penned something about a "Van Gogh with ears." I don't know who said that. Turner is assistant to Baylor President Abner McCall these days.

You wonder when somebody puts such a notation of the back of a painting. Robert Mann, now assistant city editor of The Dallas Times Herald, recently said NOW "had been on fire for 15 years." Robert started here in the late '50s.

I don't know about that. I know something of the years intervening, and Van Gogh was minus one of his ears in less time. I still listen through two.

What I suppose this means is that some of us in the newspaper business and living various places in these United States sensed somehow the enormous changes coming up during the 1960's and continuing into the 1970's, quieter until a Milwaukeean popped some rounds into

George Wallace.

Like most everybody, most of what I learn is seen and experienced. Somehow, it just doesn't seem worth it to accept what most say of 20th Century man's living "a life of quiet desperation."

The inscription on the picture is interesting, in retrospect, because a lot of anger spilled into the streets and campuses, the cities and shopping centers and resolved little and created a lot of turmoil.

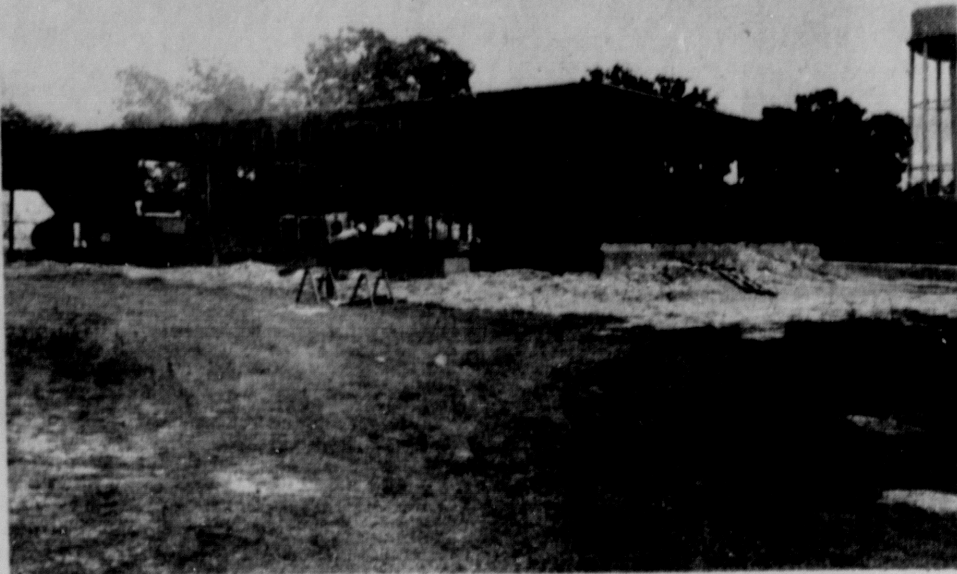

It all seemed a waste, at worst; and a safety valve, at best. But anger is one thing, probably a normal, healthy thing. Hatred is quite another, an oblique melancholia that puts guns in the hands of half-crazed men and turns thousands of normal people into street mobs.

Despite the inscription, then, it was difficult for me to see what was gained, except a near rupture of the nation a couple of times.

Anger is an emotion, like love. And I tried, dismally at times, to put mine to work. But it can be channeled, I learned, to good effect in most cases.

In fact, anger sometime is an introduction to love. I know the experience, an exceptional, wonderful thing. It is anything but common, in fact.

I would not take anything for these past dozen years, because they gave much. They required much. And they give the lie to the inscription on the back of the painting.

NEW CLINIC is going up next door to St. Edward Hospital, with steel framework already in place. The clinic will house doctors offices when it is completed.

Stiles Field Day Offers Wide Program

THRALL

A wide range of topics and field studies will be discussed at the 10th annual Stiles Farm Foundation Field Day on June 20. Activities will get under way at 2 p.m. at the farm which is located one mile east of Thrall on U. S. Highway 79.

Field day visitors will have an opportunity to tour crop and livestock enterprises and to hear about work on pasture grasses, grain sorghum, loose stacking and processing hay, swine waste disposal, sunflowers, doubling calf gains with improved grasses, and the use of Temik in a pest management program in cotton.

Information booths will feature additional information on sunflowers, cotton, swine, beef cattle, weed control, grain sorghum, plant and livestock diseases, farm economics, small grains, grasses and pest management.

Specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Research scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station will be on hand to discuss various topics and to answer questions concerning production and management problems.

A formal program will begin at 5 p.m. with Dr. John E. Hutchison, Extension Service director, serving as master of ceremonies. Joe Repa, president of the Taylor Chamber of Commerce, and Clyde Wells, chairman of the Board of Directors of Texas A&M University, will welcome field day visitors. Dr. H. O. Kunkel, dean of agriculture at Texas A&M and acting director of the Experiment Station, will introduce Stiles Scholarship winners.

The program will also feature two discussions on farm management by Texas A&M officials.

Project SHARP Names Director

Max Shumate has been named director of SHARP - Sports, Health and Recreation Program - which opens this week for special education students in the Cameron schools.

The program is a pilot project of the Austin State School and will have an estimated enrollment of 15. The program is a 2 month project including a three-day camp for crafts, music, art and swimming instruction at Leander, Texas.

Assistants named for the Cameron pilot program are William Whiteside and Helen Ortiz.

Milano Correspondent

Rejoins Herald Columns

Mrs. R. L. Myrick returns to her job this week as Milano correspondent for The Cameron Herald. Mrs. Myrick, long time resident of Milano, had reported the news from Milano until about 10 years ago when her husband's illness forced her to resign. Her column will appear in the Thursday edition each week.

GAS RATE HEARING SET FOR TUESDAY

A public hearing will be held Tuesday at City Hall on the request by Lone Star Gas Co. for a rate increase in the city.

The meeting will start at 5:30 p.m. The company has requested a 9.63 percent increase. A 19.58 percent rate increase was granted to the company in February of 1970.

The Cameron City Council held a special session in May to consider the request, and tabled it at the following meeting, to give the city attorney time to study the proposed ordinance.

Objections came from council members on a clause in the ordinance which would apparently allow the company to raise or lower rates in the future without council action. A similar section was deleted from the 1970 ordinance at the city's request.

If the city refuses the request, the gas company may appeal to the Texas Railroad Commission for an increase.

Adult Ed Students Taking GED Tests

Approximately 55 Adult Basic Education students are in the process of taking their General Educational Development (GED) tests. The first testing session was held June 13-15 at the Rosebud-Lott new school unit. The later session is scheduled June 20-22 at the Lexington High School.

Mrs. Ruth Sharp, Yoe High School counselor, is in charge of testing procedures and is assisted by Jack D. Ruzicka. Mrs. Sharp is expecting 45 or more of the students to pass all five phases of the GED tests. In December and January 26 adults passed their GED tests, which is the equivalent of a high school diploma.

Schools participating in this program are Rockdale, Caldwell, Lexington, Marlin, Rosebud-Lott, Gause, Hearne, Giddings and Cameron.

A fee of $10 is charged for administration of the test. This is the only charge made to students in the ABE program. The testing sessions will conclude the 1971-72 adult school year.

Anyone who has not completed grade school or high school is eligible to enroll in the Adult Basic Education Program in September.

Jaycees Seek New Members

The newly organizing Jaycees will meet Tuesday in Buckholts at Joe Glaser's lake house at 7:30 p.m. New members are being recruited and young men ages 21 through 35 are invited to join. The organization will include members from Cameron and Buckholts.

Area Roundup

Helicopter Joins Wolf Hunt

GEORGETOWN

Williamson County will have a helicopter from the Extension Department of Texas A&M in an effort to control coyotes and wolves which have been plaguing the sheep and goat raisers of the county, as well as some ranchers with young calves. The county trappers said the helicopter would fly low over known haunts in an attempt to flush them from their hiding places where the trapper can shoot them.

Campfire Burns Small Boy

SOMERVILLE

A 15-month-old boy was treated here Sunday for burns about the back, feet and fingers after falling into a bed of hot coals at a campsite near Lake Somerville. He was William McCambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex McCambridge of Pasadena. He was moved to a Pasadena hospital after being treated at St. Jude Hospital. Some of his burns were reported classified as being third degree.

No Solution To Paving Problem

TEMPLE

Searching for perhaps a "miracle", Temple city commissioners sought a way to pave about 35 blocks of dusty, gravel streets in east and southeast Temple. About 15 property owners - some who have desired a paved street for 20 years - listened intently. But in the end of the special session, Mayor Jamie Clements had to conclude, "Gentlemen, we do not have a solution to the project tonight."

White Named Police Chief

ROCKDALE

Truman White, a former Cameron city policeman, was promoted from assistant chief to police chief here last week following the resignation of Chief Harold Rich.

"Pot" Grows Near Hearne

HEARNE

Sheriff E. P. Elliott said chief deputy Lee School Hurley Jr. discovered 46 marijuana plants growing on a ranch four miles outside of Hearne on May 27. One young Hearne man was filed on by Hurley and he was released on $2,000 bond set by Peace Justice Jack Mathews of Hearne. The plants were impounded for evidence.

Burleson Reports Screwworms

CALDWELL

Five cases of screwworms have been recorded in Burleson County, as a "red alert" is being sounded throughout the state as screwworms continue to assault livestock and other animals. Weather conditions were favorable for heavy buildup last winter in Mexico and spring overall conditions were ripe for a massive screwworm invasion.

Commissioners Decline Bill

BELTON

Bell County commissioners declined to pay a bill for $4,890 for foster child care presented from Kinsolving Canyon Lodge at the June 12 meeting of the court. The bill apparently dates back to the opening of the lodge as a halfway house for pre-delinquent juveniles and other children who have no place to go. The bill was rejected since it is not a budgeted item by the county.

Milam Pilot Building Own Plane

Ever wish you could just fly over a line of slow moving traffic on the highway? Kenneth Thweatt, local Shell Service Station operator, not only wished it, he did something about it.

"I was impatient with ground speed and traffic congestion," Thweatt said. So he enrolled for private flying lessons at Texas Aeromotive in College Station and earned his private pilot license in 1960. With license in hand he joined an elite group of about 25 Milam Countians who claim flying as a hobby.

Does it take nerves of steel to pilot that first plane? Thweatt says no, that it is something every student pilot looks forward to. But the first lone landing is a different matter. He describes it as something like a first date. "You're nervous, over anxious, terrified even. But with practice it becomes as simple as driving."

One post-license landing is a chilling memory. There was a malfunction of the plane while he was in the air. As he came down to land the motor died, but he was able to proceed in the landing maneuver without harm.

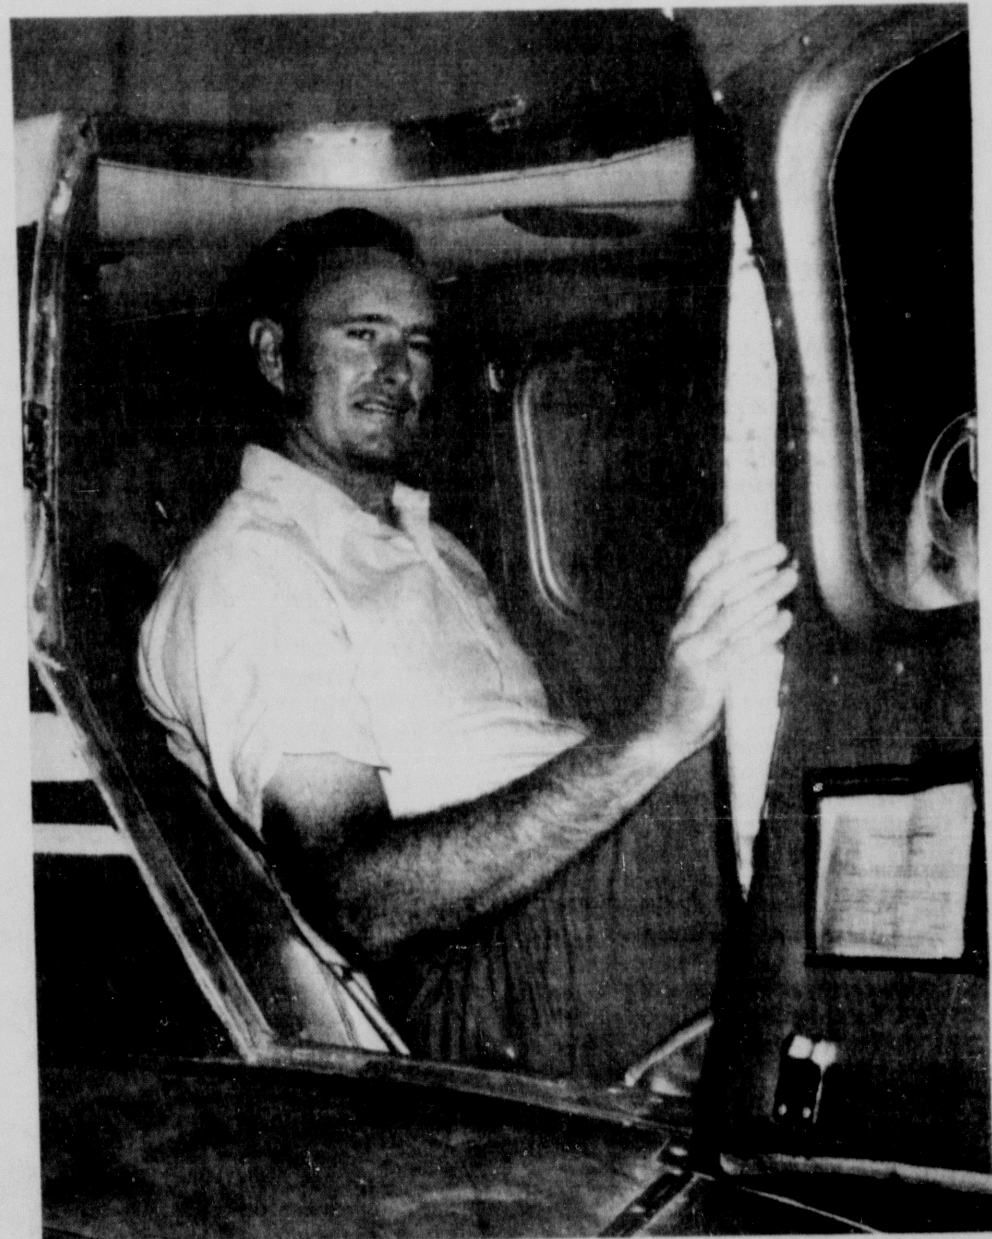

Thweatt shares ownership in an 18 ft. long, 150 horsepower plane with Steve Terry, Julian Terry and Jeffrey. It is stored at the Cameron Air Park and used by the four partners on a schedule basis.

Airplanes, like automobiles, come in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and capabilities. Thweatt estimated that there were about 300 brands to choose from.

"New planes usually start at about $2,000," Thweatt says, "and the sky's the limit." He said planes cost about $10 an hour to operate.

But if you aren't satisfied with a plane made on an assembly line, you can always build one. Kenneth Thweatt and some friends are doing just that. He says it will be about three or four years before the maiden voyage, but it will be 'custom-made' and faster than the one he presently uses. Plans are for a four-seater plane with 180 horsepower, 1,200 lbs. gross weight and a 900 pound carrying capacity.

Though most of his flying hours are in this vicinity, Thweatt did go for distance on one trip, flying from Denton to LaGrange, Bryan and then Cameron - well over a thousand miles.

CAMERON PILOT Kenneth Thweatt in his partnership owned 4-seat airplane at Cameron Air Park plans to switch to his 'home-made' plane which is about mid-way complete.

Defusing In The 'Armory'...

Something is astir about Vietnam.

Russia's Podgorny is in Hanoi. This country's Kissinger is on his way to Peking.

The summitry of President Nixon is somehow heading toward a squeeze on Hanoi's determination to press its fight into South Vietnam. It may only be a matter of weeks until somebody finally says: "Enough!"

U. S. bombing is having its effect on supplies to North Viet divisions in the South. Vietnamized South Viet troops are holding and regaining ground. The mining of North Viet harbors like Haiphong has stopped Soviet ships.

The initiative is turning. And diplomacy for a time has seen results.

Quite likely, Russia waited until the test of Vietnamization was complete. Russian supplies were committed for this all-out attack on South Vietnam, the Viet Cong believing they could crack Saigon.

But American air and sea commitments deterred movement of supplies. The land war is not going to a schedule pleasing to Hanoi. And they have lost the zeal of Ho Chi Minh.

President Nixon timed the mining efforts with announced plans to visit Moscow. He already had been to Peking.

It appears talks in both Communist capitals have started the shutdown.

The defusing of an agonizing Asian war may finally be in the armory of tri-partite powers U.S., Russia and China.

As Mao Smokes, Etc. ...

The Chinese smoke about as much as anybody in the world, according to Reuters.

Mao smokes cigars and sometime a cigar, despite his admonishment for his people to live a Spartan life. His example may be why tobacco consumption is 140 times the amount it was in China when the communists took over in 1949.

Reuters says Chinese are among the world's heaviest smokers. Warnings against cancer are nil, unlike efforts in the West. The Chinese are as stoic about smoking as they have been for centuries toward much of their overcrowded, underfed lives.

Says Reuters: During a banquet given by President Nixon in Peking last February; "English-speaking Chinese officials looked with some surprise at the message on the side of each packet (of American cigarettes) Then they shrugged their shoulders, and lit up."

As Chairman Mao smokes, so smokes a nation.

Chess Championship To Be Played In Iceland

By Thorsteinn Thorarensen
Reuter Correspondent

REYKJAVIK, Iceland
Iceland is enthusiastically preparing to play host to a world chess championship likely to gain the attention of more people than any other event of its kind ever held.

The contest, opening on July 2, has become one of the most fascinating confrontations in the centuries-old history of chess.

The American challenger Bobby Fischer, poses the biggest threat in many years to the long hold of Soviet players on the title, and has established a reputation as one of the most colorful and enigmatic players ever to reach world status.

Fischer's recent record along is enough to excite chess buffs. When he meets the formidable world champion, Boris Spassky, the 29-year-old Fischer will be riding the crest of an extraordinary string of one-sided victories over top players in the elimination tournament which made him the challenger.

Spassky, 35, will be defending a Soviet hold on the title that has remained unbroken for 24 years -- and the dominant player for two decades before that was a Russian-born chess genius who lived in France, Alexander Alekhine.

Fischer, a former child prodigy who has once thought to have blighted his career by a series of seemingly temperamental withdrawals, has now emerged as a chess juggernaut.

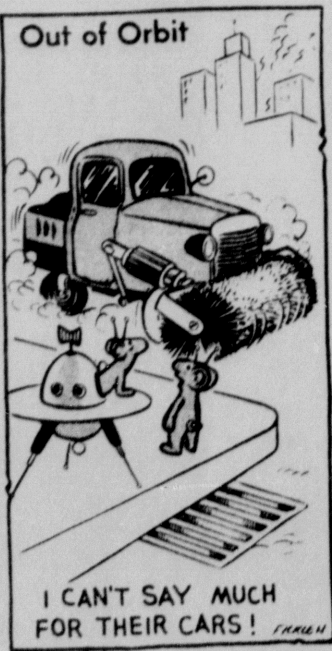

Experts here are divided on whether he will be able to demolish Spassky the way he did former world champion Tigran Petrosian, also of the Soviet Union, last autumn to gain the right to challenge for the title.

Petrosian is famous for his patient, systematic play, but analysts agreed that Fischer shattered his game. After their Buenos Aires series, one of Petrosian's analysts, Soviet grandmaster Yuri Averbach, said: "His spirit was completely broken after the sixth game of the match."

"There is some strange magnetic influence in Bobby," Averbach said. "The same happened with his two previous opponents in his march for the world title, Grandmasters Mark Taimanov and Bent Larsen. They were also spiritually wrecked after the first couple of games."

But many experts feel Fischer will be up against a different problem in Spassky, who took the world championship from Petrosian in 1969 and has earned broad respect for his attacking flair and deep determination.

Mexican Pres. Dynamic

Mexico opened an institution of higher learning in the United States this week -- in San Antonio, Texas. Why?

The answer to that question lies in the personality, leadership and goals of Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez. The new dynamic President of Mexico is visiting the U. S. this week to discuss a couple of major problem areas between Mexico and this country.

If his track record here comes close to his achievements in Mexico since his inauguration December 1, 1970, he will go back home with some commitments about the Mexican laborers in California and the salinity problems of the Mexicali Valley caused by the Colorado River water.

His visit to Texas gave this state a clue to his major goals in Mexico. He dedicated the San Antonio Mexican Cultural Institute -- located in HemisFair's Mexico pavilion. It is symbolic of the principal changes Echeverria is attempting in Mexico's way of life.

His enthusiasm and determination to solve Mexico's problems has become contagious among all government leaders in his country.

His common workday is 12 to 14 hours -- with no complaints from Mexico's government leaders and their staffs.

There is no "siesta" in Mexican governmental circles these days. The new leadership in Mexico is determined also to get rid of the "manana" image -- and turn it to "today and tomorrow."

They recognize internal problems -- and have programs to do something about them.

"Most of Mexico's problems can be solved by education," Echeverria believes.

His program for educational reform in Mexico points out the fact that he means what he says.

Echeverria anticipated the country's education problems before he started his six-year term as president (a president may not succeed himself in that country.)

"President Echeverria studied the country's population statistics and discovered that 500,000 children per year will be entering the elementary education program," states Mexico's Secretary of Education Victor Bravo Ahuja.

"Mexico has a population of 50,000,000 -- half of which is in the rural areas. One-fourth of the population is between six and 14 years of age. There were no schools for 150,000 students wanting to enter elementary school."

"More than 12,000 new teachers must be trained each year to educate these new students," the Secretary of Education continued.

Legislative leaders are predicting a quick end to their long-dreaded special session which began last Wednesday.

Gov. Preston Smith caught nearly everybody by surprise when he announced he has discovered an additional $125 million in federal funds which can be applied to welfare.

The federal windfall for social services to the needy was Smith's secret weapon to finance 1973 state operations without need for any new taxes.

Most lawmakers had concluded he would recommend an eight months' budget for welfare to make it possible to avoid another tax bill before he leaves office.

The governor proposed a $4.1 billion budget for 1973 ($818 million from general revenue).

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Rayford Price says they are optimistic about chances of finishing the budget-writing job in two to three weeks.

Submission of other matters would keep the special session going longer, although Smith has indicated he is reluctant to broaden the call. A proposed new code of ethics has been drafted, and there will be pressure on the governor to submit it.

Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell told the joint finance committee he fully expects to get written confirmation from Health, Education and Welfare officials next week that the additional welfare funds will be available.

Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, who must certify foreseeable revenue before it can be obligated by the legislature, wants firm evidence the $125 million will be available if he permits it to be counted in 1973 budget-writing. If Calvert declines to certify it, lawmakers almost certainly will turn again to the eight-month's welfare budget idea.

Six members were absent at the time the picture was taken.

ATTEND CONVENTION - Jack Tumlinson, Republican nominee for State Senator, and Lloyd Albertson were among Republicans attending the recent state convention.

Countians Attend Convention

Five Milam County Republicans attended the GOP State Convention in Galveston on Monday and Tuesday, joining over 5,000 delegates from all over Texas in the Party's largest convention to date.

Attending from Milam were new County Chairman James E. Luckey and Mrs. Luckey of Rockdale, and Jack Tumlinson, Mrs. Tumlinson and Lloyd Albertson of Cameron.

They joined other delegates of the 11th District that includes counties in Central Texas. Jack Tumlinson, who is a Republican candidate for State Senator in the new 18th District, served on the Committee on Organization, which selects the permanent officers of the State convention.

James Luckey also served on one of the committees. The Republicans, who convened in the spacious Moody Civic Center, heard speeches and remarks by Party officials including U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, the keynote speaker; Sen. John Tower, Cong. Jim Collins, Bob Price and Bill Archer. National Committee man Fred Agnich and National Committee woman Mrs. Ann Armstrong, among others.

Sec. Butz, in his speech, devoted a good part to outlining the Republican administration's new program for improving conditions in the rural areas of America which would involve pouring millions of dollars into rural communities in loans and grants for industries there.

Sen. Tower, who received an ovation when he took over the speaker's stand, said he would run for re-election on his record in his eleven years of service in the Senate.

Food Prices Relate To Demands

"Like it or not, they went up!"

And the consumer doesn't like it. However, according to Dr. Carl E. Shafer, associate professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, prices of food products, like those of any other product, are related to how badly the consumer wants them and to the supply available.

The recent commotion over price increases has been centered around beef products, a high consumption item in most households today.

"The percentage of households using beef is extremely high," Shafer said, "higher than those using the so-called substitute products, chicken and pork."

The Texas A&M University researcher added that it was interesting how consumer demand for beef products continued to rise despite the increasing prices. At the same time, the prices of pork and some other agricultural commodities, such as eggs, were dropping.

Shafer, a specialist in price analysis and marketing, said the recent jump in demand has brought about increased beef production which, in turn, will have a tendency to bring the prices back down.

He said the recent concern over increased prices reminded him of a similar reaction that occurred in the winter and spring of 1966 in which consumers actually marched and picketed over the prices of milk, bread and pork.

"What the consumer doesn't understand," Shafer said, "is that the farmer is more dependent on market conditions than are many other industries. Farmers who aren't subject to supply control produce as much as possible, seldom knowing what price he's going to receive for his efforts until he sells the product. If not enough of the commodity is produced to meet the demand, the price is going to rise. If more is produced than the consumer wants or needs, the price will drop." Shafer gave the automobile industry as an example of determining the demand for a product before producing it. Matching supply with demand is an obvious factor in maintaining price control.

"Of course, the prices of cars go up too," Shafer said, "but we don't buy a car every week like we do food. And so far, there's no known substitute for food." He added that the 16.5 percent figure normally quoted as disposable income used for food is an average that includes the top income brackets. That percentage can drop to as little as five percent for high income families.

Vietnam Bombs Surpass WW II

NEW YORK In the seven years of participation in the Indochina War U.S. forces have exploded an average of 118 pounds of ordnance every second during the war and a total that amounts to twice the explosives used during all of World War II. A survey of U.S. action in the war published in the latest issue of Scientific American reports the amount of explosives used equals 584 pounds for every man, woman, and child in Indochina and 142 pounds for every acre of land. Twenty-six billion pounds have been exploded in the area. In Vietnam alone the total amount of explosives equal 21 billion pounds. That comes to 497 pounds for every acre of land and 1.215 pounds for every person. The survey was done for the Scientists Institute for Public Information by Drs. Arthur H. Westing and E. W. Pfeiffer. Westing is a biologist at Windham College in Vermont. Pfeiffer is a zoologist from the University of Montana. The information was based on Defense Department statistics and involved a field trip to Vietnam.

There are 21 million bomb and artillery craters in South Vietnam alone. B-52 raids produce and additional 100,000 craters every month since bombing has been increased. The effects of the bombing have been enormous and have created permanent physical scars on the countryside, turning it into a moonscape. Westing and Pfeiffer report. The average crater from a 500 pound bomb is about 30 feet in diameter and five to 20 feet deep. In the south the bombs broke through the water table and the craters are filled with stagnant water. The water has so increased breeding grounds for mosquitoes there is a marked increase in malaria and dengue fever directly attributable to the bombing. Useless grass grows in the old craters and farmers will not try to cultivate crops in the bombed area. Slivers of sharp metal cut the feet of the farmers and the hooves of their cattle. There are also thousands of unexploded bombs and shells in the areas. One of the principal industries of South Vietnam was timber. It has been virtually destroyed by the bombing. In one area four out of five felled trees contained metal fragments that broke saw blades.

Those areas not cleared by defoliation and explosives are cleared by huge bulldozers that also create permanent scars on the land.

Japan Declares War On Stench

By Geoffrey Murray
Reuter Correspondent

TOKYO

Japan has declared war on stench—outlawing those rotting cabbage and bad egg smells that seem an inevitable by-product of industrialized society.

Anti-stench inspectors, like bloodhounds, will be sniffing around industrial plants in future for the slightest hint of bad odor.

Under a new odor control ordinance, bad smells can bring up to one year in jail or a heavy fine for a factory owner who ignores a first warning.

The ordinance is not expected to produce sweet-scented air right away. Offending industrial plants will be given a year's grace to remove the sources of stench. And the ordinance covers only five specific chemical substances as the cause of bad smells, leaving several others untouched for the present.

Pig and chicken farms have three years more to get ready for control.

Most government officials believe they have taken a step in the right direction. For the first time bad smells are considered a public hazard just like air or water pollution.

The five blacklisted chemicals are:

Hydrogen sulphide, producing a smell like rotten eggs, is chiefly created by oil refineries, sewage treatment plants and cellophane manufacturing mills.

Methyl mercaptane, causing a stench like rotten onions, also comes from oil refineries, as well as drug factories and garbage treatment plants.

Methyl sulphate, a rotten cabbage smell, comes from oil refineries and pulp mills.

Ammonia, created by chemical fertilizer mills and livestock farms, particularly from chicken droppings.

Trimethylamine, producing a rotten fish smell, comes from fish product canneries, livestock farms and garbage treatment plants.

Smells caused by the five substances will be divided into varying degrees of intensity for control purpose.

The government's environmental agency said that, in cases of public complaint, stench tests would be carried out by local authorities at factory boundaries, at gas outlets such as smoke stacks, and at the mouth of drains.

Gases collected would be tested to see if they contain any of the five blacklisted substances.

A factory exceeding the set limits will first be advised to take clean-up measures. If the request is ignored, it will be followed by an improvement warning.

If further tests show the warning has also been ignored, the offending factory owner faces a year in jail or a fine of not more than 100,000 yen (325 dollars). "We think the present measure is the most effective, although research and development techniques to analyze odours has lagged behind other pollution prevention devices," a spokesman said.

"The agency is continuing its search for even better devices to get rid of these terrible smells."

Airport Massacre Turns Spotlight On Both Sides

By Stephen Somerville
Reuter Correspondent

BEIRUT, LEBANON

Tel Aviv airport massacre has turned an embarrassing relationship between the Lebanese government and the Palestinian commandos who need this country as a strategic base.

It is a question both sides would rather not talk about, but Israel makes this a forlorn hope with accusations of Lebanese complicity and threats of retaliation at any moment.

The Lebanese government denies any connection whatsoever with the planning or execution of the Japanese guerrillas May 30 attack on crowds at Lydda Airport, in which 27 people were killed and nearly 80 wounded.

Prime Minister Saeb Salam said: "This was a foreign group, travelling from a foreign capital, flying in a foreign plane. Lebanon does not come into it at all."

Israel insists that Lebanon does come into it, alleging that the group responsible for the operation—the Marxist popular front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP)—has its headquarters in Beirut.

Reports from Israel quote the sole surviving Japanese gunman as saying he received training with the Popular Front in Lebanon.

Lebanese security official-als say there is no trace of the Japanese ever having set foot in Lebanon. The Popular Front has also said the whole operation was organized outside the Arab world, and the prime minister of Lebanon told a press conference that the government understood the PFLP had moved its headquarters secretly out of Lebanon some time ago.

The front spokesmen here refuse to reveal the whereabouts of their headquarters or, except on rare occasions, of their leader, 45-year-old George Habbash.

The front maintains at least one office in Beirut where it publishes a weekly newspaper, Al-Hadaf ("Target").

Ghassan Kanafani, its editor, and a young American-educated spokesman receive reporters in a room there decorated with political posters, bomb fragments and trophies such as the eagle plaque from the U.S. Embassy in Amman which was stormed by demonstrators in 1970.

The front also maintains bases in some of the Palestinian refugee camps scattered around Lebanon, where some 300,000 Palestinians provide a popular base and a flow of recruits for the various commando groups.

Lebanon is vital to the Palestine resistance movement. It is the commandos last effective rear area for preparing attacks inside Israel or the Israeli-occupied territories.

Last summer King Hussein completed his campaign to evict the Fedayeen guerrillas from Jordan. There are now no fixed guerrilla bases in his country.

Commandos still have bases in Syria, from which the ses in Syria from which they carry out raids into the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights, but they are kept under close control by the Syrian army.

Lebanon is the last host country which allows them a relatively free rein, but even here their style has been cramped in recent months.

Majestic Himalayas Take Toll Of World Climbers

By Elizabeth Hawley
Reuter Correspondent

KATMANDU, Nepal

Mountain climbers from around the world lost more contests than they won in their latest series of struggles with the majestic Himalayas, despite a climbing season marked by generally excellent weather.

With the season ending as the monsoon weather sets in, climbers have some disappointing failures to study as they prepare for the next season's efforts.

Out of seven expeditions that started off with high ambitions in the Nepal's Himalayas, only three reached their target summits—and 19 people in four different expeditions died on the permanently snow-capped mountains.

The one expedition to make headlines was a multi-national European group, but for the wrong reasons. There were squabbles among the different national groups, poor relations with the Nepalese Sherpa porters, and supply problems.

The expedition's unfulfilled goal was to scale the unclimbed southwest face of Everest, the world's highest mountain towering 29,028 feet.

Its failure, after a disastrous international attempt last year, has probably spelled the end of multi-national efforts, mountaineering experts believe.

A South Korean expedition on the eastern side of the 26,658-foot Manaslu Peak ended in disaster when 15 persons were killed in avalanches over two days. The deaths of 10 Sherpas, four Koreans and one Japanese was the biggest tragedy ever to strike a single expedition in the Himalayas.

A Japanese party on un-conquered Dhaulagiri Four got only about half-way up the 25,133-foot peak before the illness of two members led them to abandon the effort. One of the men died.

A two-member West German party had permission from the Nepalese government to climb 27,890-foot Lhotse, but made little headway.

Of the summit conquests this season, only one was a first ascent. And the other two were marred by the deaths of climbers.

Two Austrians lost their lives in a raging snowstorm on the western side of Manaslu within hours of its conquest by one of their colleagues. One Japanese plunged to his death in an accident soon after climbing the previously unconquered Nampa Peak 22,162 feet high, with another mountaineer.

The third conquest this season was by a team of eight Japanese and four Sherpas of 23,750-foot Putha Himachuli. But it was not the first ascent of the mountain, which was first climbed 18 years ago by a different route by two Britons and four Sherpas.

Five Japanese teams and one or two French expeditions are expected in Nepal during the autumn season at the end of the monsoon. But once again Everest may hold the center of attraction. British team led by a noted climber, Chris Bonington, expects to receive permission to attempt again the formidable southwest fact on which two successive expeditions have failed.

Countdown Starts On Lone Star 500

COLLEGE STATION

The countdown to the Lone Star 500 is under way at Texas World Speedway. Five full days of racing excitement will begin Wednesday, June 21.

Sunday, June 25, at 1:30 p.m. is green flag time for the Lone Star 500, a major NASCAR-Winston Cup event that will bring all of America's top stock car drivers to the two-mile Texas World Speedway.

Richard Petty, going for his fourth Grand National driving championship and winner of the last December's Texas 500 here; Bobby Allison, who has finished first or second in three-fourths of this year's major events; James Hylton, No. 2 behind Petty in the 1972 Winston Cup point standings, and tough Bobby Isaac, champion here in 1969, are only four of more than 50 drivers who will be competing for the winner's share of a $95,000 purse starting Wednesday (June 21).

Interesting activities are slated each day at Texas World Speedway:

Wednesday -- Inspection of all cars and practice sessions.

Thursday -- Qualifying for positions 1-20 in the Lone Star 500. A great duel for the eagerly-sought pole position could break the TWS record of 176.284 miles per hour.

Friday -- Qualifying for positions 21-40 in the Lone Star 500.

Saturday -- Qualifying for positions 41-50 in the Lone Star 500, plus a special 2 p.m. consolation race for all non-qualified cars. A final practice session for all Lone Star 500 qualifiers will follow the consolation event.

Sunday -- The Lone Star 500, starting at 1:30 p.m., preceded by an entertaining pre-race show starting at 11:30 a.m.

Camping facilities will be available near the Speedway for persons interested in taking campers or mobile homes and "making a week of it." In addition, the infield area will be available for overnight parking on Saturday, June 24, with entertainment to be provided.

Reserved seat tickets (at $10, $15, and $20) now are on sale. Information may be obtained by calling (713) 846 - 8741. Unreserved grandstand seats and infield tickets will be sold at the gate on race day only.

Wildlife Young Belong In Wild

AUSTIN

Cute and cuddly wildlife young have a way of growing into dangerous animals, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife officials.

This is the time of year when fawns and other appealing animals appear in large numbers. It is also the time when large numbers of recreationists head for the Texas outdoors.

These fun-seekers find the young animals, think they are abandoned and take them home for pets. This is not only dangerous, it is against the law if the animals is a game species.

"The assumption of abandonment is probably false," according to Pierce Uzzell of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

"While the mother is away," said Uzzell, "the fawn lies very still, resembling a sun-dappled log or rock. During the first few days after birth, fawns appear to have no scent, and hunting dogs have actually jumped over a motionless fawn without noticing it."

People who pick up young animals do a disservice to the animal and themselves. It takes special knowledge to raise a wild animal under domestic conditions.

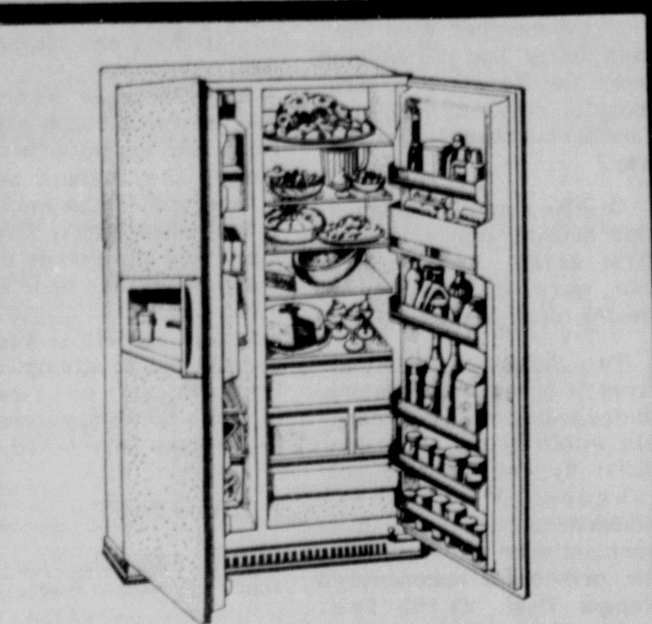

Animals which survive table scraps and inexpert care grow up under protected conditions and lose their natural fear of man.

This makes them dangerous.

The cases of "wild pets" suddenly becoming vicious are numerous. The victim is often a child.

"The best rule when finding a young animal in the woods is to leave it alone," said Uzzell. "Look at it for a while if you want, but then turn your back and walk away. Both animal and human will be better off that way."

THE TEMPORARY STATE CAPITOL site is undergoing excavation by Highway Department archeologists, but the department is postponing construction of a new office building on the site until the Legislature reviews the department's site study. The study was ordered after historical groups protested that the proposed office building would block the view of the Capitol and Governor's Mansion (in background) from much of downtown Austin. Supreme Court Decisions To Affect Criminal Trials

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen noted in his news column this week that the U. S. Supreme Court handed down two decisions last week that are being widely interpreted as evidence that the Court has changed some attitudes toward crime and the effectiveness of our court system.

In the first decision, the Court ruled that jury verdicts do not need to be unanimous in criminal cases.

The second decision compels witnesses to testify before grand juries.

In the jury decision, the Supreme Court upheld -- by 5 to 4 majority -- state laws requiring only a 9-3 or 10-2 jury vote to conviction criminal cases.

In the decision on immunity, the Court ruled that criminal suspects who are compelled to testify before grand juries are not entitled to absolute immunity from future prosecution.

"Along with many Americans concerned about growing crime rates," Bentsen said, "I have long felt that U. S. courts are not as effective as they need to be to deal with the crime situation our country faces. Criminals have been released on legal technicalities. Court dockets are jammed. Justice is meted out at a snail's pace."

Assembly Of God To Hold Revival

The First Assembly of God Church in Cameron will hold revival services June 21 through July 2 beginning at 7:30 each evening.

Rev. Henderson is a world traveler and travels with the Central Baptist College and choir on tours as speaker for the group.

The public is invited to attend the services.

When the Liberty Bell cracked in 1835 it was tolling for the death of John Marshall.
